From 84% and Hopelessness to Her Dream College ✨

Yashvi came to me at a time when she felt completely shattered. She had scored 84% and wanted to pursue IT, but the merit list for the course had closed at 87%. To make things even more difficult, she had applied to only one college—the very college she dreamed of attending.

With the admission possibility seemingly out of reach, she had lost hope and was struggling to believe that things could still work out.

Through our session, we worked on shifting her emotional state from fear, disappointment and hopelessness to hope, belief and trust. She began believing in herself again and opened herself to the possibility that there could be another way.

And then came the unexpected!

She received a call from the college asking her to come in on a Sunday—a weekend—to discuss her admission.

What happened next felt nothing short of magical. ✨

Yashvi got admission into the college she had always dreamed of, for the exact course she wanted to pursue.

Her journey is a beautiful reminder that sometimes, when we feel that a door has completely closed, we may simply need to change the way we look at the possibility of another door opening.

✨ Her biggest transformation: She came in believing “It's impossible” and walked away believing “Maybe it is possible for me.” And that shift in belief changed everything.
